Facebook in the Classroom

Social networking sites continue to be among the most frequented sites on the Internet. Students are prolific users of Facebook, MySpace, Twitter, etc. Through these sites students forge identity, communicate, form/maintain relationships, organize, learn .

But what do you do when you receive a friend request from a student. How close is too close?

Come participate in an interactive discussion about social networking sites and the role they are playing on college campuses. Bring your stories, experiences, and ideas to share with the group.
