

Eugene Applebaum College of Pharmacy and Health Sciences and the Office for Teaching and Learning present

Patti Clayton is Coordinator of the NC State Service-Learning Program and a Visiting Lecturer in College of Humanities and Social Sciences; she also works closely with the Office of the Vice Chancellor for Extension and Engagement and with The Caldwell Programs, the university's most selective leadership development program. Patti has provided leadership to the SL Program since its inception in 1999. She also works with middle and high schools as well as with other colleges and universities on the development, implementation, and refinement of their service-learning initiatives.

Patti Clayton, PhD.
Coordinator of the NC State Service-Learning Program, North Carolina State University

The Scholarship of Teaching and Learning

This information, as well as additional information about Patti Clayton, is available on the NC State University faculty page

Thursday,
May 25, 2006

11:30 am – 12:30 pm

Room 0610 (Eugene Applebaum College of Pharmacy and Health Sciences Auditorium)

Come hear Dr. Patti Clayton discuss the Scholarship of Teaching and Learning. Patti's interests are highly interdisciplinary and include civic engagement, environmental ethics and policy, history and philosophy of science, leadership and ethics, and innovative approaches to teaching and learning (including reflective environmental life writing, classroom-as-active-learning-community, and service-learning).

For further information, contact
Rick Slaughter at 577.8502 or email: rls@wayne.edu

WAYNE STATE UNIVERSITY

